WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate rackets investigators try to trace today how a union charter bounced around among what they called "a succession of favored individuals."

"We want to see how often it bounced and where it landed," Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said, referring to a charter issued for New York Local 228 of the old United Automobile Workers.

McClellan is chairman of the special Senate committee now investigating improper labor-management practices in the New York City area.

The group has received testimony that racketeer Johnny Dio controlled some locals of the UAW which later changed its name to the Allied Industrial Worker Union, and of the Teamsters Union.

"I think we have clearly demonstrated that some of these characters have been granted for purposes of exploitation," McClellan said.

McClellan said the committee in four days of hearings scheduled for this week, plans to hear 40 to 45 witnesses in its efforts to uncover the extent to which racketeers have milked union members and shaken down employers.

So far, he said, the committee has shown "only a small part of the picture of what can and does happen when this" unwholesome element gets in charge of unions and their actions are condoned by higher union officials."

Faubus Won't Intervene for Two Slayings

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Slaying Emmett Earl Leggett and rapist Walter Bailey, whom Gov. Orval Faubus has refused to save from the electric chair, were to learn today when they will die.

Faubus said Saturday he would set execution dates today for both men. He said the death sentences would be carried out within 30 days.

Only one person has been executed for a crime during Faubus' 2½-year tenure. He was Leo Searcy, a Negro convicted for rape and electrocuted last September.

The governor did not indicate Saturday whether he would set the same execution date for both Leggett and Bailey.

Electrocutions are by tradition performed at sunrise on Fridays at Tucker Prison Farm.

The Leggett case, which resulted in a widely publicized trial, has drawn the most attention.

The 20-year-old Jacksonville, Ga., court-appointed lawyer, John Bailey, indicated Saturday night he would continue legal efforts to save Leggett from the chair.

"I will exhaust all remedies," Bailey said.

Leggett was convicted of first degree murder for the strangulation killing of 14-year-old Joe King near Jacksonville on Dec. 23, 1955.

He was arrested a few weeks after King's body was found. Police said he was caught while raping a teen-aged girl after having raped and badly beaten her sister.

Leggett was tried only in the death of King. The prosecution said Leggett admitted killing King when the boy resisted an unnatural sex advance.

McClellan Boosting Senator Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) says Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass.) "definitely has presidential potential" for 1960.

In an interview recorded for radio broadcast yesterday, Los Angeles, McClellan recalled that the Arkansas delegation supported Kennedy for the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1956.

"I think they would do so again," he said. "I think they would support him for president next time. Of course, I can't foresee what the situation will be in 1960. But he's highly regarded. He definitely has presidential potential."

Is Highway Setup On a Concentrated Attack?

By ADREN COOPER

BRINKLEY (AP) — Does the hassle over highway funds signal the beginning of the end for the Mack-Blackwell Amendment? Is it a lever by which Highway Director Herbert Eldridge could be pried out of his job?

State Sen. Tim Allen, a key legislator in budgetary matters, does not view a proposed special session of the Legislature as a political plot to leave Eldridge for the roadside or as an effort to weaken the commission system.

"The Highway Department needs money and we've got to figure out a way to get some," he said. "I do believe that the Highway Commission is going to have to watch things a little closer."

... but just this one thing doesn't mean there is any reason for doing away with the system.

"I don't believe the governor will pit the commission in a compromising position. After making his appointments, he is inclined to leave any commission alone. And VVI don't believe he will use the situation as a means of getting Eldridge fired. I just don't believe he operates that way."

The Mack-Blackwell amendment, adopted at the polls in 1952 after an investigation of the Highway Department, provide that only one commissioner may be appointed during any 2-year period. Sponsor of the amendment said that the aim was to put the Commission on a "non-political" basis. Even a 2-term governor could put only two men on the 5-member commission.

Gov. Orval Faubus, who served briefly as highway director under the old system, has been cool toward Eldridge and has stated that the commission should give more consideration to requests from individuals and groups. He has criticized Highway Commission policies but has never directly attacked them.

Irate Wife Fights Automobile Duel With Her Husband Until He Finally Chicken's Out

LOS ANGELES (UP) — A jealous wife last night fought an automobile duel with her husband and at one time nearly pinned him between his demolished auto and a building, police said. She was booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Robert D. Smallfield, 42, of Alhambra, told police he and his wife, Wilma, also 42, quarreled at home and he drove away in his new auto.

Minutes later she followed in her own older car and rammed her husband's vehicle at a cross street.

"I knew he was out for blood and I stepped on the gas," Smallfield told officers as he signed a formal complaint.

She caught and rammed him again at two other intersections and shouted:

"Turn around and fight like a man!" and "You coward, come back and have it out! My car can knock out your fancy-Dan heap any day."

Smallfield told police he occupied a side road, but when he returned to the boulevard his wife was waiting for him and rammed him again. He circled the block a dozen times with his wife in pursuit.

"I finally got chicken and abandoned my car," Smallfield said.

He said when he got out his wife tried to pin him between his battered car and the building, and then came after him with a club.

Smallfield ripped ignition wires from her car, outran his wife and called police who picked up the woman three blocks from the scene.

"I didn't want to kill him — I just wanted to scare him," she said.

Armed Services Accused of Wasting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The armed services have been accused of getting away from military austerity and wasting money in building officers' quarters, barracks and other structures.

The charge was contained in a report by staff investigators for the House Appropriations Committee. The committee made public the investigators' findings yesterday as part of the record of hearings on defense financing.

The investigators said the Air Force wants to air-condition personnel quarters and to provide private baths.

They said the Air Force has designed officers' quarters "which are much more elaborate and expensive in layout and treatment than those previously constructed."

The Army and Navy also were included in the investigators' complaints concerning increased use of such features as brick facings, aluminum, fireplaces, maple dance floors and window canopies.

Rep. Sheppard (D-Calif.) said the staff report backs up repeated complaints that the military services will, as he put it, "spend every dollar they personally can."

These were among instances cited by the investigators:

Treasury Island Naval Base, California. Installation of ceramic tile wainscots on outside concrete block walls of enlisted men's barracks. Estimated cost — $50,000.

The Army's Ft. Benning, Ga. Construction of a "monumental" boiler house with a rubbed finish concrete exterior to match the finish of the base hospital.

High Court Gets Jury Picking Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A controversy over a proposed change in method of selecting jury commissioners for the 14th Judicial Circuit composed of Garland and Montgomery Counties reached the Arkansas Supreme Court on appeal today.

Gov. Orval Faubus vetoed a legislative bill which would have deprived Circuit Judge C. Floyd Huff of sole authority to select the commissioners. He would have shared the duty with the chancellor and the county judge in each county.

Sponsors of the bill contended that Faubus did not act within the legal time and that, therefore, the bill became law. They lost in Pulaski Chancery Court, but have now appealed the Supreme Court.

Tito in Secret Talks With Russian Head

BEYLADE (AP) — Yugoslav President Tito returned to Belgrade today from his secret meeting in Romania with Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Tito came home just in time to welcome president Ho Chi Minh Communist North Viet Nam, who arrived from Hungary for a five-day official visit. Thousands lined the streets as the two presidents drove together through the capital.

Experts on Yugoslav foreign relations meanwhile indicated that as a result of the Khrushchev-Tito meeting, the Yugoslav leader would spearhead a new Soviet-inspired drive to forge closer links with non-Communist socialist parties of the West.

Moscow radio described the meeting as the firming up of an agreement on "energetic forms of cooperation" between the Communist parties of Russia and Yugoslavia.

Experts here believe Khrushchev went further and agreed to a "new relationship" among Socialist parties of the world — non-Communist as well as Communist.

They said Khrushchev showed willingness to permit "a greater degree of freedom" for some East European countries and stressed his recognition of the Yugoslav Communist party's full independence from Moscow direction.

The Tito-Khrushchev meeting was their first since the Soviet boss won his power struggle with Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and other Soviet leaders. One of the counts against the Malenkov-Molotov group was that they opposed the reconciliation with Tito.

Observers here saw the new Khrushchev-Tito accord as a move by the Soviet party chief to ally suspicions held by foreign Socialist parties of the Kremlin.

They suggested Tito would occupy a "very important place" in the new setup on grounds that only he could bring the Socialists into the Soviet camp.

Charges Nixon Playing Politics With Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said today Vice President Nixon is playing politics with the jury trial amendment to the administration's civil rights bill.

Johnson pointed in an informal news conference to Nixon's statement last week, after the amendment had been written into the bill, that it was "a sad day for the Senate."

"It is rare when the vice president starts lecturing a majority of the members of the Senate," Johnson said. "He was here for very little of the discussion of the bill and he knows very little about what is in it."

"Any objective person, who is not playing politics, knows that this bill represents an advance in the field of civil rights."

"There will be a more substantial vote for passage of the bill than there was for the jury trial amendment which the vice president criticized."

Predicting the bill will be passed finally Wednesday or Thursday, Johnson said the jury trial provision was adopted "because the Senate decided it is not going to abandon the right of trial by jury."

The amendment would require jury trials in all criminal contempt cases, where a federal judge desires to punish an individual for failing to comply with a court order or complying with it too late.

Johnson discounted the contention of some administration leaders that the broad nature of the jury trial provision in criminal contempt cases would hamstring the operations of many government regulatory commissions.

"To say that you can't get justice with a jury trial is to say that you can't have justice at all under the present system," he said.

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in Congress put on a pressure today to deliver to President Eisenhower for his acceptance or rejection of a civil rights bill he has criticized severely.

A high administration official said Eisenhower will veto the bill if it reaches him in the form in which the Senate is expected to pass it in next day or two.

Democrats were publicly silent about his fears. But some of their leaders made it clear privately they are in the mood to give Eisenhower the opportunity to veto the first civil rights bill Congress thus would have passed in 80 years.

Cuban Rebels Playing a War of Nerves

HAVANA (U)—Partisan of rebel leader Fidel Castro launched a war of nerves today against the government of President Batista.

They broke into hundreds of private telephone conversations in Havana shouting, "We have taken the presidential palace, long live Fidel Castro."

The interruptions started a flood of rumors that Batista's government had collapsed.

Simultaneously, rebels distributed thousands of leaflets in Havana and nearby towns and cities calling upon Cubans to stay away from work today.

Early reports indicated, however, most workers were flocking back to work throughout Cuba.

Two Killed in a Plane Identified

GREENVILLE, Miss. (U)—Greenville Air Force base officials today identified the two men killed in the landing crash of their jet training plane yesterday.

The dead were 1st Lt. David F. Holleran, 25, of Clinton, Iowa, and 2nd Lt. Ronald Van Lenge, 22, of Homestead, Fla.

They were returning from a proficiency operating flight at the time of the crash.

Officials said they were uncertain as to the cause of the crash in which the pilot of the T-33 trainer. Investigation continued.

The American Bible Society has volunteers of the Holy Scriptures to mail in the U. S. Armed Services.

They faced loss of their jobs if they didn't.

Artists and technicians at one of Havana's privately owned television stations went on strike and police took over the establishment. These stations and all newspapers have been strongly censored since Batista suspended constitutional guarantees for 45 days.

The government and army claimed "absolute calm and normalcy" prevailed throughout the nation.

Batista, from his office behind blocked iron gates in the presidential palace, declared "there won't be any general strike. If it is tried it will be quickly smashed."

In Havana and the provinces, there was mounting tension, uncertainty and confusion as rebels spread rumors Batista had been ousted.

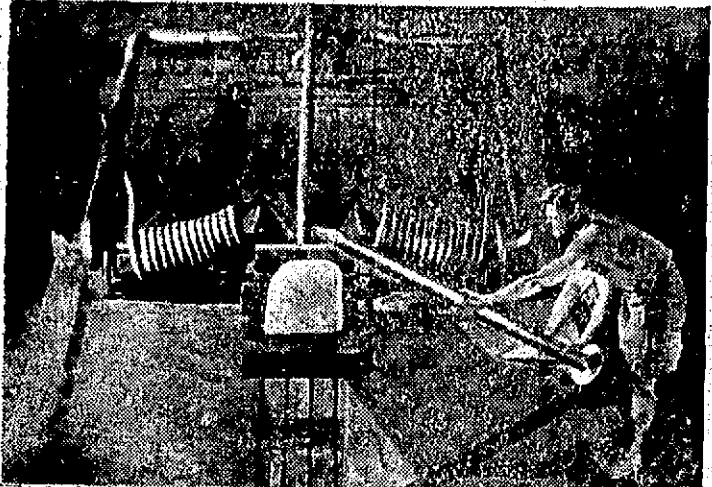

Castro's rebel radio continued broadcasts urging Cubans to strike and gave them instructions on how to make Molotov cocktail bombs to continue widespread sabotage and night bombings.

Army headquarters announced that two persons were killed and three injured when a bomb destroyed a house in Guantanamo.

Facts Sadly Lacking in Rights Battle

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (U)—The Senate fight on civil rights has been long on words and short on facts.

For four weeks, the senators split legal hairs and congratulated one another on their high-level handling of the civil rights bill.

On some of the biggest issues the senators on both sides were badly informed.

For example: On the number of Negroes registered to vote in the South they had no official information; on the number of Negroes serving on federal juries in the South they had no information until the last moment.

And on one basic bit of information of the Justice Department—which was pushing the bill for the Eisenhower administration—fell flat on its face.

Last February the Senate Judiciary Committee asked the department for statistics going back to 1940 on all the civil rights complaints it had received and what happened to them.

The department answered (1) it didn't have sufficient records and (2) it couldn't get together the records it had in time to be included in the printed hearings of the committee before which Atty. Gen. Brownell had testified.

Take Negro voting in the South: There were no official records available on the number of would-be Negro voters registered in the South as a whole. The Southern Regional Council, a private organization, had made a Southwide survey of this in 1955.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) put the council's figures in the Congressional Record. Southerners challenged them. The council, with headquarters in Atlanta, is made up of Negroes and whites to promote racial cooperation.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-Sci.), insinuating the council was left-wing, offered as proof that the council's figures couldn't be right this statement: Nobody in South Carolina knows how many Negroes were registered in 1950.

Why? Because until a law was passed this spring, registering would-be voters by race was neither practiced nor required.

At the start of the debate this writer—hoping to check official Southern registration figures state by state to check against the council's—called the office of Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), captain of the Southern anti-civil-rights fight.

His office had either figures for Georgia or those for the South as a whole.

The Democratic and Republican national committees, with headquarters in Washington, might be expected to be a primary source of information on voter registration, including Negroes, throughout the country.

This writer called both committees asking the figures on Southern Negro registration. Both committees said the only figures they had on this were from the Southern Regional Council.

On the number of Negroes serving on federal juries in the South, there is no doubt some service on those juries, but far fewer on state juries. How many Negroes

Cuban Gives Up Mississippi River Swim

ROSEDALE, Miss. (U)—Cuban Jose Cortinas, bone weary and chilled after 43 hours in the water, gave up today his attempt to swim 300 miles down the Mississippi River.

The one-time Cuban "Athlete of the Year," now a swimming teacher at Los Angeles, was pulled from the muddy water, gasping and shivering, after making 147 miles.

The 225-pound 40-year-old heavily quit after 100 miles, but got over the hump, urged on by a steady chatter from the accompanying boat crew. The last straw came when the navigating boat twice ran aground in the pitch dark early morning hours on the mile-wide river, causing painful backtracking in search of the main channel.

Jose was out to swim to Vicksburg, 300 winding river miles downstream from Memphis, where he started his marathon Saturday by plunging into the muddy river from an excursion boat.

He was out to top the 292-mile record set in 1940 by a St. Louis butcher, John Sigmund, who swam from St. Louis to Caruthersville, Mo., in 80 hours 52 minutes.

The swim party was on route back to Memphis in the 32-foot cabin cruiser that served as "headquarters."

Brothers Plot and Kill Their Father

BRAINERD, Minn. (UP)—A 10-year-old boy today today faced a possible murder charge after confessing he killed his father in a plot backed by his two brothers.

The boy, Ira Rollins Aamodt, told authorities he stalks his father in a dense woods and carried out his part of the plot by shooting him in the back.

"He was always hitting and kicking us," the boy said.

Ira's confession apparently ended a nine-day search for the slayer of Ole Aamodt, 57, who was found face down in a thicket near his northern Minnesota farm July 27.

Sheriff Roy Wickland said Ira, his brother Billy, 13, and step-brother Richard, 15, were questioned immediately after the discovery of Aamodt's body. After body. After further questioning Ira broke down late Saturday and confessed.

"I couldn't do anything to suit him," the slight, fair-haired boy said.

Wickland said the three boys signed confessions in the presence of their mother, who resolved to stand by them. The boys, Wickland said, admitted they made plans to "do away" with their father following a series of beatings.

The murder plot took form last June when their father beat them because he was displeased with the way they ad planted some corn. Wickland said, A fresh dispute took place July 26 between Aamodt and his sons.

Ira, left behind to do a haying job, saw his father enter the woods to hunt a sheep-killing bear. Putting down his pitchfork, Ira took up a .22 caliber rifle, and trailed his father into the woods where he shot him.

Billy and Richard apparently knew nothing of the slaying until the following day when Ira led Richard to their father's body, Wickland said.

The two boys struggled with their father's 225-pound body, moved it about six feet, then returned home, the sheriff said.

A ballistics test indicated the bullet found in Aamodt's back came from a rifle in the Aamodt home, described by Wickland as a "dirty shack."

Mrs. Aamodt told authorities the boys often had been abused by father.

The case will be turned over to the county attorney's office for possible grand jury action, Wickland said.

federal juries? And how many Negroes serve in proportion to the number of whites on federal juries? Nobody knows.

Supporters of an amendment to let Negroes serve on federal juries in the South—by by-passing state laws which might discriminate against them—at the last minute wired federal judges in the South for information.

Twenty-three answers were received. They were not announced in the Senate until a few hours—ed in some cases a few minutes—before the vote on the amendment. Only one of the 23 judges gave figures. He said about 18 to 20 per cent of his jurors are Negroes.

The rest—with three exceptions—simply said Negroes serve or serve regularly. The three said a proportionate number of Negroes—compared with whites—serve.

The lack of this kind of information—about an amendment which was intended to remedy a situation on which one had facts—was illustrated neatly by Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), long-time foe of civil rights legislation.

He insisted Negroes serve in most of Mississippi's counties. Sen. Carroll (D-Colo.) asked him: How many counties? Eastland didn't know. Carroll asked him: What percentage of Mississippi Negroes serve on juries? Eastland said: "I do not have any idea."

AP&L Gets Contract Ark-La Sought

WASHINGTON (U)—A contract to install electric heating and air conditioning units at Little Rock Air Force has the support of Air Force and Defense Department officials.

Their testimony before a House Appropriations Subcommittee was made public yesterday.

Finny S. Bryant, assistant secretary of defense, said "there have been some areas of confusion" and possible mistakes in cost estimates. But both Bryant and John M. Ferry, special assistant Air Force secretary for installations, said the contract was satisfactory.

The committee staff study noted that Arkansas Power Light Co. and Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. had submitted "diametrically opposed" cost studies.

Installation costs of either the electric or gas systems would amount to more than 18 million dollars, Air Force figures disclosed.

Ark La contends the Air Force could save operating expenses with gas units. APL claims the Air Force should have its choice of systems.

Rep. Whitliss (D-Miss) said his

Bulgarian Is Left at Home by Khrushchey

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
AP Foreign News Analyst
It looks as if the famous Kdemlin traveling circus of "B and K" has lost its "B." Premier Nikolai Bulganin is not traveling with Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchey, at least for the time being. He's staying home. Khrushchey went without Bulganin to Romania last week to meet with Yugoslav President Tito. He's going to East Germany soon for an official visit — also without Bulganin.

Has Bulganin's physical health suffered recently, forcing him to take a rest cure, or is his political health poor? After Khrushchey purged V. M. Molotov, Georgi Malenkov, Lazar Kaganovich and Dmitri Shepilov from the Soviet Communist party leadership in late June, rumors circulated that Bulganin had not been very firm in support of Khrushchey during the crisis. Quite possibly if Bulganin thought things were going against Khrushchey, he went over to the opposition temporarily, later backtracking in time to save his job for the time being.

Perhaps significantly, Soviet press reports of the speeches at the meeting of the Moscow party organization following Khrushchey's purge gave a space to any remarks by Bulganin. These reports grouped the Premier with M. G. Pervukhin, who had suffered emotion in the purge, as those who "also spoke."

Americans who have studied films taken of the Khrushchey-Bulganin visit to Czechoslovakia last month reported that Bulganin seemed to be acting as if he were definitely on the outside of things.

It may be that Bulganin, 62, is simply not vigorous enough lacked the Mack-Blackwell system. Two members of the commission, Jim Crain of Wilson and Harry Parkin of Little Rock, were appointed by Faubus.

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett has said that some three million dollars in fund used to back up highway bonds can be transferred to the department without legislative action.

"Mr. Bennett may be right," Allen said, "but I believe we need higher authority — from the courts — before moving that kind of money."

The three million dollar would enable the department to pay contractors on current jobs, but would not solve a long-range financial problem.

The Highway Commission has said that an estimated 10 to 15 million dollars additional is needed to assure that all federal money is matched by state funds so that all possible work may be done.

The commission had notified contractors they can be certain of being paid in full only for work done by Aug. 15. However, the payment of about 1 1/2 million in federal funds sooner than expected may delay the crisis until October.

After that, if additional funds are not available at once, contractors will be asked to do their own financing or accept only a percentage of the amounts due them until new construction monies become available late this year, when all debts would be met in full.

At present revenues must be set aside for bond retirement and other commitments before any goes to the department for its job of building roads.

Eldridge and the commissioners have admitted that the commission perhaps was over-optimistic in the amount of contracts it let during the last fiscal year for work now in progress.

Others factors: More money taken out of revenues by the 1957 Legislature for benefit of cities and counties, a legislative change in the "bond year," which made more money available late last fiscal year but reduced it by a corresponding amount now, and the failure of gasoline revenue, which support the department, to reach anticipated levels. Gasoline tax collections have been going up, but not as fast as has been predicted.

Both the governor and Sen. Allen believe that a special session of the Legislature is the only answer to the overall financial problem and Faubus has said he won't summon the lawmakers in the absence of a definite plan of action.

If the General Assembly approves a bond issue of 10 or 15 million dollar — in effect, borrowing that amount — the issue would be subject to ratification of rejection at the polls.

There also has been some speculation about the possibility of an increase in the gasoline tax, which could be voted by a two-thirds majority of the Legislature without the necessity of popular approval.

Although the price of gasoline and the federal tax on it have gone up, there has been no increase in state gasoline taxes in many years.

Allen was informed that the federal government had allocated $1 1/2 million for highway construction including 28 1/2 million for the fiscal year which begins July 1, 1958, and ends a few months after the next regular session of the Legislature.

"Well, there's your answer," Allen said. "I don't see any other way out (than to call a special session). Of course, we'll have to map out some plan in advance — we don't want 35 different ideas on the subject when we convene."

"I don't believe people are going to wait for months without any road construction, and we don't wait to lose any of our share of federal funds. The governor has financial experts working on the problem and maybe they will come up with something... but it looks like a bond issue is the only solution."

Eldridge and the commission have not said there would be no road construction. They have said that it might have to be curtailed. There was open criticism of the Highway Commission during the 1957 Legislature, but even the more outspoken legislators criticized specific policies — not the commission system. Many used the words "independent" and "high and mighty" in describing the attitude of the commission (usually in private), but most of them said that better public relations would prevent much of the public criticism.

But it also may be that Khrushchey is getting ready to dump his old traveling partner and get a new one. If he does, it will not be much of a surprise.

DOROTHY DIX

There's a Time to Tell; 'Till Then, Mums the Word

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm in my late teens, and in love with a boy who is, I feel sure, quite serious about me. There is an occurrence in my past that I am wondering if I should tell him. I was married secretly, and later found out my marriage wasn't legal since the man already had a wife and child. I had a baby who died at birth. My parents hushed everything up. Is it necessary for me to tell my boy friend, or should I wait until I know it's the real thing?

IRIS

Dear Iris: It certainly isn't necessary to tell the story of your life to every boy who takes you to a dance, but when a lad gets stars in his eyes on a rainy night, it's time to tell all. If the boy runs out on you after this chapter of revelations — well, it's a chance you take and part of the price of folly.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've been married for five years, separated for two. I'm 24, and have two children. I've met a man I love who is also in love with me. His mother is trying to keep him from seeing me on the grounds that he's too young (21, too). Should I fight for him or let him go?

JOYCE

Dear Joyce: Let him go. A young man of 21 is too young to handle the responsibilities you have already incurred. Besides, there's a small technicality: you're separated, not divorced and in no position to be shopping for husband No. 2.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Should I continue seeing a man who shies away from marriage, stating he doesn't want the responsibility, yet wants to keep company with me and hints that he will provide for me in his will? He's a widower in his 60's. I'm 51. I like him as a friend, but I would prefer to get married.

AMY

Dear Amy: If you think the active marriage market holds promise for you, try it. However, it is admittedly difficult to find eligible men in your age-group. Rule the will business out (it is nonsense) on the basis of whether the man contributes anything in the way of companionship and friendship.

Dear Dorothy Dix: During my 40 years of bachelorhood I acquired a photo album which means nothing to me except a reminder of many old friends and good times. My wife, who is a doll except for her jealousy, threatens to burn it some day. I don't display it, have shown no attachment to the young ladies pictured in it, and consequently can't understand her attitude.

FREDDIE

Dear Freddie: Your wife married you present — not your past. Keep the album in hiding if it bothers her; never refer to it, and some day for a special favor, burn it yourself.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm an attractive widow of 45. My sister is 25. When we go out together we are taken for mother and daughter. What can I do?

KITTY

Dear Kitty: It certainly is a disconcerting situation, but there's nothing disgraceful about it. Call up your sense of humor and battle it out on sun grounds.

Ceylon Envoy to U. S. Gives Okay on Gluck

WASHINGTON (UP)—Maxwell H. Gluck, controversial new U.S. envoy to Ceylon, has been given an important endorsement from the Ceylonese ambassador to the United States.

Gluck's appointment sparked a controversy after he flunked a Senate quiz on Ceylonese matters, including the name of Ceylon's prime minister. Ceylon newspapers have been calling for him to turn down the assignment.

But Ambassador R. S. S. Gunawardene said a two-hour visit Saturday with Gluck, who has been boring up on his new job, left him "very favorably impressed."

"He certainly knew the name of the prime minister," Gunawardene said, "although he found it difficult to pronounce it correctly."

The prime minister's name — Solomon Bandaranaike — according to the Ceylonese embassy is pronounced "Ban-dar-a-nai-ka."

Gunawardene said Gluck, a 57-year-old millionaire racehorse owner turned diplomat, had "quite a good idea" of conditions in Ceylon. He said Gluck is going to his new post with an open mind and was "greatly interested in Ceylon's arts and crafts and Buddhist philosophy."

In a statement issued yesterday by the Ceylonese embassy here, Gunawardene said, "I am very favorably impressed with him. I am particularly glad he is going to Ceylon with an open mind and wishes to see things for himself."

Building Bee Gets 5 Houses for Cameron

CAMERON, La. (AP)—Five modest houses are ready for survivors of Hurricane Audrey after organized labor's first weekend building bee.

More than 150 volunteer AFL-CIO members proved in on Parish county Saturday morning. When they left late yesterday the houses were finished.

The labor men plan several more weekend projects as their contribution to rebuilding the area ravaged in June by the disastrous hurricane that claimed 500 lives.

A crew from Alexandria built the largest house, at Creole for Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Richmond and their four children. A Shreveport crew built two houses at Grand Chenier for Mrs. Charles Broussard, 64, and Mrs. Frances January, 65, both widows.

A New Orleans crew worked at Cameron, where it built a house for Gilbert LaSalle, a 32-year-old man, and his surviving child. LaSalle lost his wife and four children in the hurricane.

A crew from Baton Rouge built a home at Creole for Vian Richard, a 51-year-old disabled bachelor.

Plain Weather Reports Liked by Many

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Connoisseurs of the nation's weather have a pronounced cleavage in their views of TV and radio weather forecasting. Some like it straight. Others like it fancy.

One of the most articulate and comely exponents of the fancy approach to tomorrow's weather report is a Midville, Ga., lass. Her name is Ted Thurman, a tallish 6 foot 7 1/2 inches, shapely, hincy-haired and blue-eyed young lady who says:

"I don't read books on meteorology. I just read sexy books." You will realize that this is not an improbable statement if you've heard her give the weather reports on NBC Radio's "Monitor" or heard and seen her on NBC-TV's new "Tonight" show. The weather is always sultry, even if it's freezing, when Miss Thurman articulates the forecast in a modified Southern accent.

To innumerable American males who write her proposals of marriage and send her flowers, Miss Thurman is the voice that can make even the approach of a hurricane sound heart-warming. There are, also, one or two weather purists who object to her forecasts on the grounds that—well, frankly, she sounds too sexy.

Now what's wrong with that? "Nothing," says an anonymous member of the watch and ward society. "It's not what she says, but the way she says it. If a farmer is worried about his crops, he can't concentrate on the forecast."

She left Midville to study art in Washington, D. C., for a year. When her parents urged him to return home, she came on to New York and went to work for the Conover model agency.

She made pots of money and acquired a Park Avenue apartment and took a lot of kidding because of her Southern accent.

"There's nothing wrong with a Southern accent," she said, "except that I wanted to be an actress. An actress with a Southern accent can obviously play only a Southern woman—and how many roles are there?"

So she took speech lessons and lost her accent. Then "Monitor" wanted a weather girl and somebody heard Miss Thurman talking. That was it. NBC signed her to a contract and now she isn't modeling any more.

Laguna Shows What a City Can Really Do

By BOB THOMAS

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The citizens of this jewel-like seaside town have shown the world what a community can do for art and itself.

For 30 nights, tourists and townspeople sit under a starlit sky, silent except for an occasional high-flying jet heading out to sea, to watch living masterpieces. The curtains of the stage at Irvine Bowl part and you see three great paintings of the Huntington Library—Blue Boy, Tragic Muse and Pinkie.

Only the slightest wavering of one of the characters in the tragedies proves to you that the paintings live.

Later you see Actaeon and Diana, two nude dancers in graceful poses. The Manassa Mauler standing over his victim in Dempsey-Firpo by Bellows. Discollo, the symbol for the Olympic Games. A ballet scene by Degas and a magazine cover by Norman Rockwell.

Above the stage is a great bas-relief of 20 great men portrayed on the Albert Memorial in London. Silhouetted against the sky, Marines from a nearby base re-enact Joe Rosenthal's classic photo of the flag-raising on Iwo Jima. The finale is a re-creation of Da Vinci's The Last Supper.

With a musical score and a splendidly narrated, the show makes great entertainment. It's all due to the cooperative enterprise of the community.

For 30 nights, salesgirls, bankers, artists, lawyers, housewives, school kids and life guards donate their services to add to the glory of Laguna Beach. Over a million people have seen the Pageant of the Masters since its start in 1928.

With its rocky coves and rugged hills, Laguna Beach was a natural playground for artists. They started coming in the early part of the century. In 1918, the first gallery of the Laguna Beach Art Assn. was opened.

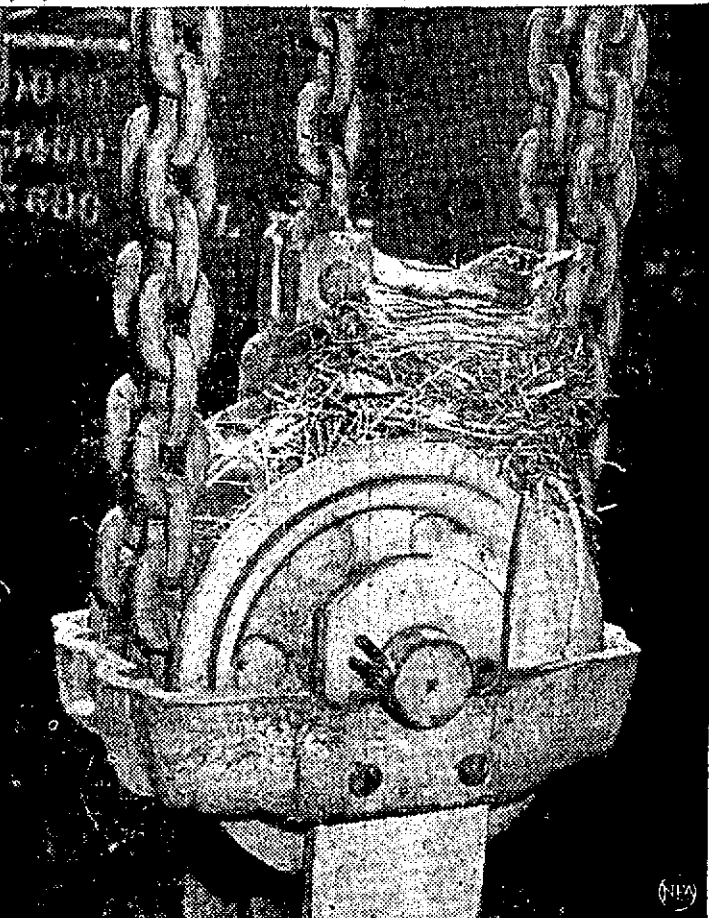

The Festival of Arts began 25 years ago with a summer showing of local art. In 1934, the first Pageant of the Masters was given, featuring living pictures. Now the whole town pitches in for the annual event.

Last year the Festival, which also features art exhibits by local creators, brought in over $100,000. Half is used for civic improvements, half goes to next year's expenses. So everyone profits, including art.

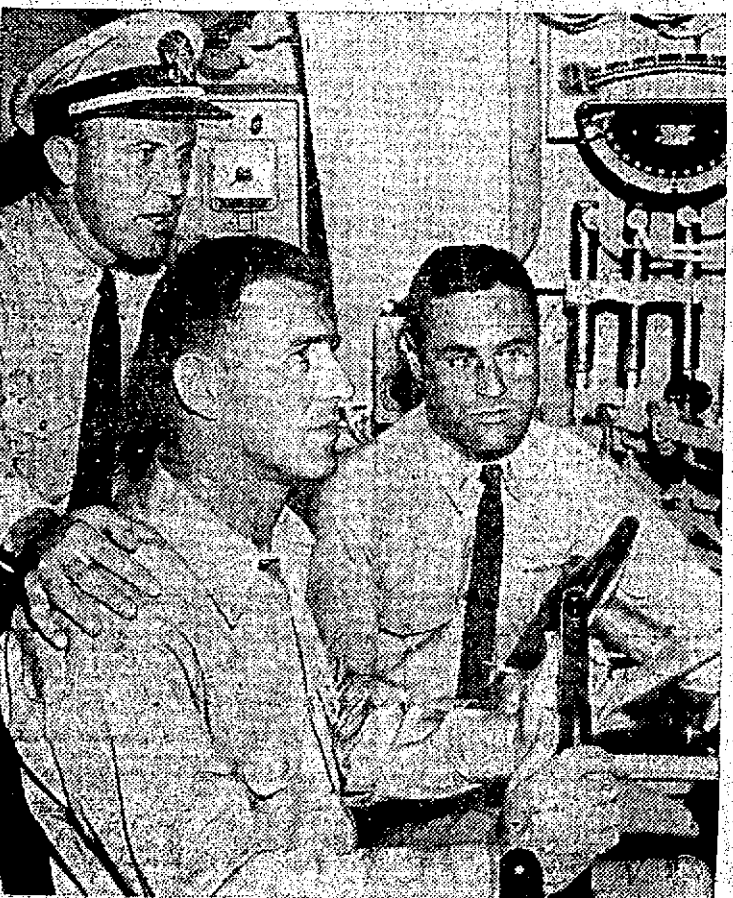

In 1963, the U. S. Congress gave Laguna 1,530 acres of Louisiana land as a reward for his services in the American Revolution.

THE FEMININE TOUCH—Mrs. Beulah Leonard lures two of her wandering bulls home with a bucket of grain after the Indianapolis (Ind.) police emergency squad met their match. The squad received a complaint that "three cows" were molesting neighbor's flowers and arrived on the scene with lariats, but required Mrs. Leonard's expert help when they discovered two of the "cows" were bulls.

CHAINS OF MOTHERHOOD—Mama Robin looks chained to her task here incubating her eggs on the pulley of an overhead crane. The bird set up house at the B. F. Goodrich Koroseal plant, Marietta, Ohio. Company workers cooperate by using another crane until Mama's "free as a bird" again.

CIVILIAN SUBMARINER—The only civilian crew member of the U.S. Navy's nuclear-powered submarine Seawolf, "Guarantee Engineer" Charles B. Gilbert, center, takes the controls during a dive somewhere in the Atlantic, as two of the sub's officers look on. An employee of General Dynamics Corporation's Electric Boat division, which built the ship, Gilbert is assigned to see that the atomic sub meets all specifications and to accumulate information to improve future designs. He's already logged 12,500 miles in the sub, 8,000 of them while submerged.

CHAPTER XIX

Coming into The Narrows, I had an idea. I couldn't forget that outsider I'd spotted to the east when I was following Birch Crane. But I thought it might work if that rider stayed as far east as he'd been. It was clear to me now how the Clements were guarding Dorsey and how foolish I was for low-rating the Clements that way. Why they had riders spotted all over the prairie. They'd roam out there on the high ground, mind their own business. But watching Nobody could tell where Pete Dorsey was from where the riders were. They wouldn't both the prairie trails and that way they wouldn't draw suspicion. You could ride right up to the ravine and the cave and they wouldn't trouble you. You could even take Dorsey. But try taking him from him and the outsiders would be on you.

Disagreement on System of Appropriation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Wilson and President Eisenhower are in disagreement over a proposal for changing the appropriations system. Wilson says it conceivably could endanger national security.

The proposal calls for a new system under which Congress would appropriate each year only into it. He stumbled and I knew he didn't have much left.

The carrying on the wind, I heard hoarbes to the east, close. I new I'd guessed wrong then and that outsider over there hadn't cut west like I thought he would.

I saw the sloughgrass and veered Pilot for it, feeling sorry for him as he put out a big chunk of what bottom he had left. I pulled him up at the tall grass. I jumped down and pulled Dorsey off. I grabbed my rifle and slapped Pilot on the rump. He wouldn't go at first. I cursed him and he headed north the way I wanted, moving at a good lope toward town with the weight off his back. I jerked Dorsey down into the soft, marshy ground. Dampness soaked into my pants and my face felt the wet from the sharp sloughgrass. I held Dorsey by the shoulder. His breath came sharp and hard. I felt sorry for him. I stopped crawling and tried to look back through the grass. I couldn't see anything. I wanted to rise up for a look but I didn't dare. Besides, seeing wouldn't change it. We were well into the slough and I decided it was far enough. All we had to do then was sprawl in cold, wet mud and wait. Dorsey made a low moaning sound and I squeezed his shoulder hard until he quit.

The riders from the east came up to the slough first. I heard at least two horses milling close by the slough and a man said, "Off there."

I heard the horses start into the slough. Then Dorsey got up and started to run.

I didn't have a chance to stop him. He just tore loose from my grip on his shoulder and thrashed through the tall grass, moaning loud with every breath he drew, his feet making loud sucking noises in the mud. Then the sucking noise stopped and I knew he'd reached the grass.

I knew that was the first rider who saw him. I heard the fast beat of many hoofs on the prairie. Dorsey screamed, then wailed like a baby, and I knew they had him. I jumped into the mud, dead beat and sick enough to die. I waited for them to come into the slough, not caring if they did. I felt for my rifle and couldn't find it and didn't even care about that. In a part of my mind I heard the beat of the horses fade into the prairie night. They wouldn't come for me, then. Knowing that didn't help at all.

After a while I stood up. There was nothing to see but prairie sloping up and away and black sky and stars. I dragged my feet out of the mud and onto the prairie and across it until I hit the road. I walked down the road slow until I got to the ferry. I just sat down on the boat and waved to New Hawk sitting by a jump in the shack. I waited and waited and the ferry didn't start. I looked up and New Hawk was a big shape standing over me in the night.

He said, "I been waiting for you Pike." New grabbed my shirt at the collar and yanked me to my feet. I saw that he was going to hit me. I held up one hand to keep him from doing it and tried to hit back with the other. I didn't care enough to try hard, though. His big fists smashed on the side of my head and I went down, slamsing the deck hard. My head flung up with bright, sharp flames of pain. For no special reason, I got up again. Then New Hawk went about beating the living sap out of me. (To Be Continued)

Wet and Dry Fight Looms Before House

By VINCENT J. BURKE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House girded for a wet-vs-dry fight today over a bill to reduce the federal tax on night-clubbing. The outcome was in doubt.

Called up for House passage was a bill to reduce to 10 per cent the present 20 per cent cabaret tax on food and drink consumed in hotel dining rooms and other night spots providing entertainment or live music.

The Musicians Union was leading the battle for the bill outside Congress. The union blames the tax for closing hotel entertainment rooms and throwing musicians and other entertainers out of work.

Leading the opposition were pro-drink is sinful and should be taxed heavily.

The Treasury opposes the bill on grounds it would lose revenue, cutting Treasury income by an estimated 21 million dollars a unds to be spent during that year. The government would be given authority to sign, contract covering projects of longer duration, but cash would be provided only on a year-to-year basis.

At present, Congress makes appropriations to cover both immediate spending and needs stretching beyond a year. This leads to carryover of money from one year to the next.

Wilson's opposition to the plan, recommended by the Hoover Commission and supported by Eisenhower, was disclosed yesterday when the House Appropriations Committee made public the secretary's testimony on the subject.

Saying "I do not believe in partial financing," Wilson said that under such an arrangement "you start more things than you can finish with the funds made available and you have a lot of trouble if you engage in such a procedure."

Wilson said the partial financing plan could disrupt the entire defense program. Adoption of the plan, he said, might lead Congress to eliminate cash needed for immediate programs.

"Then we would really be in trouble," he said. "That would just cause one of those big shifts in the military programs which have been so expensive in the past and waste so much money and possibly risk the security of the nation."

SUPPORTING CAST—Danny Kaye has sure-fire support for laughs in this chimpanzee who appears with him in "Merry Andrew." The comedian plays the part of a fellow who gets mixed up with a troupe of circus performers. It's only Kaye's 12th movie in 14 years. He spends much time playing the part of a real-life good-will ambassador, a role he says he's going to keep. Danny's companion enjoying the chimp's act is Director Michael Kidd.

Thought For The Day

earnestness is of principle; the

SOAPBOX DE LUXE—Bearing little resemblance to the usual soapbox, one youngster parks his sleek kiddy-car on the sidewalk as his friend feeds the parking meter in Frankfurt, Germany. The car is powered by a gasoline engine, and equipped with a gear shift for forward or reverse movement. Priced at approximately $500, it is made in Torino, Italy.

Her scripts are in English and Italian on opposite pages. In the background is her close friend and interpreter, Pamela Danova, who supplies the English when Anna gets lost.

Slaughter Bats Yankees to a Double Victory

By JACK HAND

By The Associated Press

Enos Slaughter, 41, the hustling "Country Boy" who is the oldest active player in the American League, is showing the younger New York Yankees how the game is played.

Five hits in Sunday's double victory over Cleveland bused Slaughter's lifetime total to 2,301 in a career dating back to 1938 when he broke into the majors with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Slaughter's single tied the score and his three-run homer off Johnny Gray sewed up the 5-2 first game. A later Jerry Lumpe's scratch pinch single had tied the score in the ninth inning of the second game, Enos came through with a looping single to center that gave the Yanks their eighth straight 6-5.

The sweep stretched the Yankee lead to 6½ games over Chicago which battered Boston pitching for 19 hits and an 11-6 decision in a single game. Cleveland dropped into a fifth place tie with Baltimore 19 games off the pace. The Orioles handed Kansas City its seventh straight defeat 5-0 on Billy Lee's five-hitter and Washington thumped Detroit 8-4 as the two clubs set a Griffith Stadium record with seven home runs.

While Slaughter was strutting his stuff at Yankee Stadium, his old St. Louis mates saw their National League lead reduced to a half game. After bowing to the brilliant relief pitching of the Phillies' Harvey Haddix in the 12-inning opener 5-4, the Cards won the second game 4-1 on Lenny McDaniel's steady nine-hitter.

Milwaukee moved within a half game of St. Louis by holding off a late Brooklyn spurt for a 9-7 victory with the help of homers by Eddie Mathews, Del Rice, Johnny Logan and Henry Aaron.

Cincinnati split a pair with New York, losing the first in 14 innings 7-6 when Willie Mays hit a two-homer and a triple. The Redlegs pulled out the second game 3-2 on a six-hitter by rookie Vincente Amor, Chicago climbed out of the cellar by beating Pittsburgh twice 6-0 behind Mike Drabowsky and 3-2 on Jack Littell's pinch double in the 11th, spoiling Danny Murtaugh's debut as Pirate manager.

Slaughter drove in four runs off Gray while Whitey Ford rolled to his seventh win on a six-hitter. After Tommy Byrne blew a 4-1 lead in the second game, it was Slaughter's hit that finally hung a 10th defeat on relief man Bob Lemon.

Although Mickey Mantle had five hits in the doubleheader, sending his average to .358, he still was far behind Boston's Ted Williams who moved up to .339 with three singles in four trips against Dick Donovan of Chicago.

Donovan went all the way for the fourth straight time to win his 12th despite 14 Boston hits. Lee's shutout was his fifth victory over Kansas City among his 11 wins. He struck out eight and didn't walk a man.

Roy Stover's falter in his attempt to break the American League record that he tied Saturday by hitting homers in six consecutive games. However, Pete Ranier, Milt Bolling, Rocky Bridges and Eddie Yost of the Senators and Bill Tuttle, Ray Boone and Al Kaline of the Tigers homered.

In the National, the Cards' eight-game winning streak was snapped by Haddix when Larry

Boudreau Has to Win or Feel the Axe

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UP)—Unless the last-place Kansas City Athletics do a complete about-face within the next eight days, Lou Boudreau will be let out as manager and George Selkirk probably will replace him, the United Press learned today on excellent authority.

Boudreau faces the eight-day deadline because the Kansas City front office feels something drastic has to be done before the Athletics come off the road and return home, Aug. 13.

Boudreau, whose contract still has another year to go, will be offered a job in the Kansas City front office, according to the source. As a matter of fact, he may be offered the same job with the Athletics that Selkirk now holds—director of player personnel—so that the two men actually would be trading jobs.

Selkirk, the former New York Yankee outfielder, was a penant with Kansas City in 1952 when the club was still in the American association, and still is a tremendously popular figure in that city.

A deal made with the Yankees last June 15, in which Kansas City acquired Billy Martin, Ralph Terry, Bob Martyn and Woody Held, had been calculated to help the floundering A's, but at the moment they are two game behind the evenh-place Senators and 14 games behind the Orioles and Indians, who are tied for sixth.

News Briefs

HOT SPRINGS (AP)—County officials of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation began a 5-day conference here today. Several hundred officials were on hand.

HOT SPRINGS (AP)—A. L. Roberts of Whitefield, Miss., has been elected president of veterans of the 62nd Naval Construction Battalion, which met here Saturday. Roberts succeeds Melvin Gatlin of Benton.

HOXIE (AP)—The "no man's land" trip here adjoining Walnut Ridge will remain a portion of Hoxie. Voters Saturday rejected for the second time a proposal that would allow Walnut Ridge to annex the addition which is separated from the rest of Hoxie by farm land.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Grants totaling $20,702 have been earmarked for additional research at the University Medical Center on the cure of cerebral palsy. A private foundation and a federal agency.

FT. POLK, La. (AP)—About 4,500 Arkansas National Guard troops were scheduled to arrive here today to begin two weeks of training. The Arkansas are in the 39th Infantry Division, which also includes about 6,900 Louisianans.

Prison Chow Was Simply Too Good

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—A 19-year-old bid by two Southern Michigan Prison inmates failed because one was too fat.

Robert E. Crouse, 22, and Cletus R. McKee, 24, tried to escape from the world's largest walled prison yesterday.

Jackson walked in the winning run in the 12th.

McDaniel helped his own cause with a freak double that dropped near home plate and led to the first Card run when Al Dark pitched. The bonus pitcher nursed a 2-1 lead until the eighth when two singles and Grady Hammett's two-base error led St. Louis' pick up two more off Card.

Hammett had just replaced Warren Hacker.

Warren Spahn, who seldom works against Brooklyn, faced the Dodgers for the first time since June 5, 1950 to put down a late rally.

Vicenzo Holds 4-Stroke Lead at Chicago

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP)—South American Roberto de Vicenzo is a realist. He holds a four-stroke lead over the field entering today's final round of the $25,000 All American Golf Tournament but thinks he can lose.

The husky pro, who now registers out of Mexico City, seems to be haunted by his blimp in the recent National Open when he was third entering the final round then fired a 33 and scored to 43 for a 76, ending up with the also rans.

Roberto, who can become the first foreign winner at Tam o'Shanter since South African Bobby Locke's victories in 1947 and 1948, shot a close-to-the-vest 76 in yesterday's rain-delayed 3rd round for a 54-hole tally of 203. This represented 13 strokes under par.

In second place, coming up with a rush, was 45-year-old Sam Snead who hooked on a sizzling 66 for 207. Paul Harney carried most of the hopes of the younger set with 72 for 209.

Harney, 28, from Worcester, Mass., is a solid choice among the old-timers to make a mark for himself in the "World" meet later this week.

Two other comparative youngsters, Bill Casper, 26, and Dow Finsterwald, 27, were in at 210 entering the final round. Grouped with them was veteran Jimmy Demaret.

Clifford Ann Creed, Opelousas, La., shot an 8-over-par 84 to gain an eight-stroke lead in the women's amateur division over Lois Drake, Chicago, with a 54-hole total of 241.

Jackie Pung captured outright possession of the women's pro lead with a 79 for a 228 tally. Fay Crocker and Patty Berg were second with 227.

Crocker, Don Cherry carded a 73 to share the 54-hole lead in the men's amateur bracket with 41-year-old Howard Everett, Northfield, N.J. Each had 220.

Miss Chadwick Adds to Record

PENARTH, England (AP)—Florence Chadwick, busiest of the world's distance swimmers, added the Bristol Channel to her list today with a record performance of 6 hours 7 minutes.

The time for the 36-year-old swimmer from San Diego, Calif., was 58 minutes under the male record of 7 hours 5 minutes by Harry Temme, Jenny James of Wales held the women's mark of 6 hours 29 minutes. She swam from Weston-Super-Mare to Penarth, covering about 14 miles because of the difficult tides and currents.

Miss Chadwick, who has swam the English Channel in both directions, said the water was a bit cold "but I found it an easier swim than the English Channel."

She said she plans to go back into training at once for an attempt to cross the Irish Sea in about two weeks.

Lightning Kills Woman in Boat at Cale Lake

By The Associated Press

Only seven persons died violently in Arkansas during the week which ended midnight Sunday. It was the lightest toll in many weeks.

Traffic accidents took five lives, a plane crash killed one person and lightning accounted for the other death.

A bolt of lightning struck a small boat on Cale Lake in southern Nevada County yesterday, killing Mrs. Robert Phillips, 22, of Magnolia. The other occupant of the boat, Peggy Hollis of Magnolia, was reported in fair condition today at a Camden hospital.

Mrs. Phillips' husband, who was at the lake, said the lightning ripped a hole in the bottom of the boat. Three youths pulled the women to shore.
